GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The ACSUS biennial conference, established in 1971, is the leading international event focusing on Canada and its relationship with the US, North America and the world. The event provides an important forum for academic, policy and government communities to interact within a prism of intersecting perspectives.

The theme for the 2007 conference—Toronto, Ontario, Canada: Exemplar for the 21st Century, introduces space to profile the progressive attitude of Canada, its cities and provinces. An afternoon summit analyzing Ontario's intergovernmental relations with Quebec and the US will be held in partnership with Glendon College. Water policy in the 21st century will be explored in a series of panels organized by the University of Lethbridge with focus on the Great Lakes and transboundary issues.

The program includes more than 110 panels and roundtables across fifteen disciplines in addition to plenary addresses by Government ministers from Canada, Ontario, Quebec and Alberta and roundtables celebrating Canada's brightest literary talent. It is fitting that the conference should conclude on Sunday with an excursion to the McMichael Canadian Art Collection in Kleinburg, Ontario, the only major public art gallery devoted solely to the collecting and exhibiting of Canadian art.

Saturday, November 17, 6:00pm—7:00pm (Harbour B)

Book Launch: Canadian Studies in the New Millennium (University of Toronto Press)

Featuring Editors Patrick James, University of Southern California and Mark Kasoff, Bowling Green State University

The field of Canadian Studies is a growing discipline, particularly in the United States. This introductory text offers a thorough and accessible approach to Canadian Studies through comparative analyses of Canada and the United States, their histories, geographies, political systems, economies, and cultures. Among the topics addressed are ways in which Canadian national development has been influenced by the U.S., the role of geography in shaping the country's evolution, and the persistent question of Canada's French-speaking minority, which has been an important and divisive issue since the 1500s. Canadian Studies in the New Millennium is an excellent introduction to Canadian Studies, with chapters written by leading scholars and educators in the field. At a time in which there is a growing mutual dependence between the U.S. and Canada for security, trade, and investment, this text is an ideal tool for understanding the close relationship between the two countries, their shared experiences, and their differing views.

Patrick James is a professor in the School of International Relations at the University of Southern California and has served as President and Vice President of the Association for Canadian Studies in the United States.

Mark Kasoff is a professor in the Department of Economics and Director of the Canadian Studies Center at Bowling Green State University and has served as editor of The American Review of Canadian Studies.

Enjoy all that this gallery has to offer in one comprehensive package. The Discovering Canadian Art tour includes every major aspect of the McMichael collection. Weather permitting, you will start outside where you can see Tom Thomson's Studio, an impressive Inuit sculpture and the McMichael's original home. Then you move inside the gallery to explore an impressive array of historical and contemporary Canadian art including works by the Group of Seven and Emily Carr, Canada's First Nations and Inuit, and featured artists in the Special Exhibition. The gallery offers visitors the unique opportunity to enjoy Canadian landscape paintings in the woodland setting that inspired them. Built of fieldstone and hand-hewn logs, the McMichael houses thirteen exhibition galleries and is situated amid 100 acres of serene conservation land. Floor-to-ceiling windows enable visitors to enjoy marvelous views of the densely wooded Humber River Valley. Through a network of outdoor paths and hiking trails, visitors can discover outdoor sculptures and wander the McMichael Cemetery where six Group of Seven members and gallery co-founder Robert McMichael have been laid to rest.

Please meet in the main lobby entrance of the Westin by 12:00 Noon. Tour coach leaves promptly.

DREW FAGAN, Assistant Deputy Minister, Strategic Policy and Planning

As Assistant Deputy Minister, Strategic Policy and Planning, at the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada, Drew Fagan is responsible for policy planning, public diplomacy and consultations with the provinces and territories on international policy. Appointed in July 2006, Mr. Fagan draws from an extensive background in journalism which included 20 years at The Globe and Mail, Canada's leading newspaper. Mr. Fagan held many of the newspaper's senior positions, including Parliamentary Bureau Chief in Ottawa, Editorial Page Editor and columnist, Foreign Editor and Associate Editor of Report on Business, which is Canada's primary source for business news.

He travelled widely as a correspondent for the newspaper. While based in Washington from 1993 to 1997, he was responsible for the newspaper's coverage of Mexico and the implementation of NAFTA.

Mr. Fagan is responsible for the Canadian Studies program at Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada. Under his leadership, a stepped-up review of the program is underway with a view to align it more closely to Canadian priorities. In his view, the partnerships formed between Canadian and U.S. universities play a key role in promoting Canada-U.S. relations. Teaching, research, exchanges and dialogue about Canada at U.S. institutions are an essential part of this dynamic relationship. Mr. Fagan further notes that ACSUS provides an important forum for discussion and exchange of ideas on topical issues affecting the Canada-U.S. relationship.

Fagan will present the Government of Canada Plenary address on Thursday, November 15 at 12:00 noon in the Harbour Ballroom.

Canadian Embassy

Ambassade du Canada

Greetings from the Honourable Michael Wilson Canadian Ambassador to the United States

To paraphrase Seymour Martin Lipset, knowledge of Canada or the United States is the best way to gain insight into each other's country. Through your dedicated labour of love, you impart that knowledge about Canada and its complex relationship with the United States to students, colleagues, and the public. For this we are greatly appreciative.

There is a new dynamism in Canadian Studies today. It is evident in the growing partnerships between Canadian and U.S. universities. It is visible in the new faces now teaching, conducting research, and participating in exchanges and dialogues on Canada and Canada-U.S. relations. Indeed, the discussions and exchange of ideas that will occur at the 19th biennial ACSUS conference in Toronto are a crucial part of this new dynamism.

In an everchanging environment, it is important to keep current. Many ACSUS members stay informed about Canadian news and research through Connect2Canada. If you are not a member and you want to learn more, I invite you to visit www.Connect2Canada.com. I also hope you will encourage your students and colleagues to join Connect2Canada, so they too can stay informed about Canada and Canada-U.S. relations.

I welcome you to Toronto and wish you a successful conference. And I sincerely hope you will take time to enjoy some of the many attractions that Toronto has to offer. Bienvenue au Canada!

Ambassador Michael Wilson

AWARDS

The 2007 Donner Medal

Don Alper, professor of political science and director of the Center for Canadian-American Studies at Western Washington University (WWU), is the 2007 recipient of the Donner Medal in Canadian Studies.

The Donner Medal is awarded to an individual who has made a significant contribution to the field of Canadian Studies in the United States in at least one or the following categories: teaching, scholarship, administration, service. In 1975, the Donner Foundation of New York City made a grant to ACSUS to fund the designing and striking of medals to be known as "The Donner Medal in Canadian Studies." The medal was designed by Dora de Pédery-Hunt, a distinguished Canadian sculptor and an Officer of the Order of Canada.

Alper's work and achievements in Canadian studies in the U.S. span a period of more than 30 years. He became an active member of the Canadian-American Studies (CAS) program at WWU as a newly hired faculty in the mid-1970s. He served as a "volunteer" associate director of CAS for more than a decade, and assumed the directorship in 1993. Under his directorship, 5 Title VI National Research Center grants have been won along with numerous grants supporting program enrichment, educational outreach, conferences and individual and collaborative research projects. Alper authored the proposal that led to a one million dollar grant from the US Department of Transportation to establish a Border Policy Research Institute (BPRI) at WWU in 2004, and was instrumental in the State of Washington's decision to maintain annual funding. The BPRI is the only such research institute of its kind on the northern border. Under his leadership, CAS and the BPRI have become integral to the work of key Canada-US public policy organizations, most notably the Pacific Northwest Economic Region, the International Mobility and Trade Corridor Project and the Transportation Border Working Group. In the arena of educational outreach, Alper has been a national leader since 1978, when he and his colleague Robert Monahan founded the first Study Canada Summer Institute. This program, which will celebrate its 30th anniversary next year, is recognized as a premier outreach program in the nation. In 2006, he orchestrated the successful bid to bring the editorship of ARCS to WWU.

Alper has been a leader in national and regional professional Canadian studies associations. He attended his first ACSUS meeting in 1979. In ACSUS, he served as a councilor (1987-91), Vice President (1997-99) and President (1999-01). He has been active in the Pacific Northwest Canadian Studies Consortium since its founding in 1986. Likewise, his active participation in the Western Social Science Association goes back to 1980, where he has served as president of the Western Canadian Studies Group and organized several programs.

His scholarly contributions to Canadian studies are extensive and include books, refereed articles, book chapters, book reviews, conference papers and proceedings. He has served on the editorial boards of key Canadian studies journals, including ARCS, the Journal of Borderland Studies and BC Studies: The British Columbia Quarterly. He has been invited to serve on several special commissions—including a Special Expertise Advisory Group for a member of parliament—and his views are regularly sought out by business groups and the media in both the U.S. and Canada.

A film by Pamela Calvert/Detroit Public Television (Regatta)

THE BELOVED COMMUNITY provides an inside look at a Great Lakes oil town facing a toxic legacy head-on. The nerve center of Canada's petrochemical industry, Sarnia once enjoyed the highest standard of living in the country-but now it is facing compromised environmental and community health. The city has already lost a generation of men to workplace-related cancers. Now their widows and daughters are discovering that, because of their own exposure to a cluster of hormone-mimicking chemicals called "endocrine disruptors," the next generation may be at risk.

Cold, Clear, and Deadly

Unraveling a Toxic Legacy

Melvin J. Visser

"The twentieth century was an awesome period in human history, a time when virtually all of modern technology was developed. From the automobile to the oral contraceptive, jets, computers and atomic bombs, this was the golden age of science and technology. And nothing was more dazzling than the promise of chemistry – nylon, Teflon, DDT, CFCs, the cornucopia of newly-synthesized compounds promised a golden future for all humankind. But we forgot about nature, cutting into biodiversity that is the heart of her resilience and cleansing, and we have used air, water and soil as toxic dumps. This book reveals the unexpected route of the debris of human creativity and ought to be a major impetus to lose our hubris."
