LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT STATEMENT

We acknowledge that the city of Seattle and its green spaces are located on the traditional lands of Coastal Salish peoples, specifically the ancestral land of the Duwamish, Suquamish, Stillaguamish, and Muckleshoot People. We recognize the stewardship of Seattle’s green spaces by the Coast Salish people since time immemorial, the disruption of this work by colonization, and now endeavor to continue this work.

Bienvenue à la 27^{ème} conférence bisannuel d'ACSUS !

Two and a half years ago, when we created the theme for this conference, Canada: Spaces of Change, no one could have anticipated the amount of change we would experience between biennial meetings. The longstanding partnership between Canada and the United States has been destabilized and has shifted, and we are still waiting to see what the new relationship will look like in the coming years. Out of these challenges comes opportunity. Canadian Studies in the United States has never been more needed. The saliency of our conference theme and the importance of organizations such as ours has never been greater. Our core mission—to explain Canada and Canada-U.S. relations to Americans and to foster dialogue and community among scholars—is as vital and as critical as ever.

Les idées sur l'espace et le lieu, ainsi que les changements qui se produisent à l'intérieur et entre eux, sont au cœur des recherches en sciences sociales et en sciences humaines. And, in that light, I want to highlight a few positive changes present at this conference. ACSUS is pleased to support and highlight the Emerging Scholars Colloquium, a group of students who organized prior to our last conference and solidified their place in our organization. The Stratford Theatre Festival in Ontario, in its cross-border outreach efforts, has joined our list of conference sponsors, and attendees will have the opportunity to screen and discuss two short films produced by the festival. Some of our regular attendees and institutional supporters are not able to be with us at this biennial meeting in Seattle. We miss them, and we understand why they feel they can't come. At the same time, we welcome new partners joining us, like the University of California Berkeley's Canadian Studies Program and the new Québec Delegation in Seattle, which opened recently, this past summer.

Comme beaucoup d'entre vous, je suis certain d'avoir des inquiétudes concernant la situation mondiale actuelle, mais une chose qui ne m'inquiète pas est la force et la résilience d'ACSUS et de ses membres. This conference is a quintessential example of what we can do in uncertain times. What you will experience in the next few days is the product of two years of planning and would not have been possible without the incredible work of the ACSUS Executive Council and Officers. I would like to especially thank Past President, Christina Keppie, Treasurer, Andy Holman, Chief Information Officer, Eric Weeks, Secretary, David Rovinsky, and Awards Committee chair, Miléna Santoro, for their incredible hard work, help, and support. I greatly appreciate the time and efforts of all members of the Executive Council, the work of Section Chairs, the Awards committee members, and all the institutions who support the conference and our organization.

Bonne conference!

Dr. Sara Beth Keough

President/Présidente

Association for Canadian Studies in the United States/l'Association des études canadiennes aux États-Unis

Consulat général du Canada

Dear Conference Participants,

It is a pleasure to welcome you to Seattle for the 2025 Biennial Conference of the Association for Canadian Studies in the United States.

The success of the Canada-U.S. partnership lies in the value it delivers to both countries—from nearly eight million American jobs tied to trade with Canada to almost 25 million American homes powered by reliable Canadian energy. Yet, as the U.S. shifts toward an “America First” policy, this partnership is being questioned.

In this context, Canadian studies in the U.S. are more important than ever. They provide a grounded, fact-based understanding of the importance of this unique relationship for both countries, and the impact of changing bilateral dynamics.

At a time when Canada-U.S. relations are under mounting stress, organizations like ACSUS offer a unique opportunity to reinforce the values that tie our countries together.

Through academic connections, research sharing, and Canadian studies programs across U.S. campuses and vice versa, we are investing in the future of the relationship.

Although the overall geopolitical environment may change, the mission of supporting our shared prosperity and competitiveness must endure.

Sincerely,

Craig Weichel
Consul General of Canada

Québec

Au nom du gouvernement du Québec, j'ai le plaisir de vous souhaiter la bienvenue à Seattle à l'occasion du 27^e congrès biennal de l'Association d'études canadiennes aux États-Unis (ACSUS).

Cette rencontre se tient à un moment charnière, alors que les regards du monde sont tournés vers la relation entre le Canada et les États-Unis — à la fois pour les défis que nos nations doivent relever en tant que voisins et pour les occasions historiques de partenariats qui s'offrent à nous. Les réflexions, les idées et les perspectives à long terme qui émergeront de vos travaux sont plus essentielles que jamais, tout comme notre engagement commun à renforcer les liens entre nos peuples dans un esprit d'ouverture et d'échange constructif.

Le ministère des Relations internationales et de la Francophonie du Québec est un partenaire de longue date de cette importante conférence et est fier de renouveler sa collaboration pour l'édition de cette année.

Je suis particulièrement heureux que l'ACSUS ait choisi Seattle — le siège de la plus récente représentation diplomatique du Québec aux États-Unis depuis mai 2025 — comme ville hôte de cette édition. Seattle est un lieu où les liens entre le Canada et les États-Unis sont profondément valorisés, et il n'existe pas de meilleur endroit pour réfléchir à l'avenir de cette relation et contribuer à la façonner.

Je tiens à remercier l'ACSUS et chacun d'entre vous pour votre présence, votre ouverture d'esprit et votre participation constructive. Je vous invite chaleureusement à vous joindre à nous lors de la réception du Québec, le 14 novembre prochain.

Je vous souhaite une excellente conférence!

On behalf of the Government of Québec, it is my great pleasure to welcome you to Seattle for the 27th biennial conference of the Association for Canadian Studies in the United States (ACSUS).

This year's gathering takes place at a pivotal moment, as the eyes of the world are on the U.S.-Canada relationship—both for the challenges our nations face as neighbors and for the historic opportunities for partnership that lie ahead. The insights, ideas, and long-term perspectives that will emerge from your sessions are more essential than ever. So too is our shared commitment to fostering people-to-people connections through open-minded and constructive dialogue.

The Ministry of International Relations and La Francophonie of Québec has been a long-standing partner of this important conference and is proud to renew its collaboration for this year's edition.

I am especially delighted that ACSUS has chosen Seattle—the home of Québec's newest diplomatic representation in the United States, since May 2025—as this year's host city. Seattle is a place where the bond between the U.S. and Canada is deeply valued, and there could be no better setting to reflect on and shape the future of our relationship.

I wish to thank ACSUS, and each of you, for coming together in a spirit of hope and constructive engagement. I warmly invite you to join us at the Québec reception on November 14.

Have a wonderful conference!
Cordialement,

David Ruiz | Délégué / Delegate
Délégation du Québec à Seattle / Québec Government Office in Seattle

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Tony Penikett
*Simon Fraser University
Centre for Dialogue*

“Malice or Mismanagement: North America’s History of Broken Treaty Promises”

Friday, November 14 – 8:00 am to 8:45 am – (Ballroom)

Tony Penikett spent twenty years crafting and debating policies in Canada's House of Commons and the Yukon Territorial Legislature, then ten years as a provincial negotiator of Indigenous treaties and public sector collective agreements before retiring to a life of teaching and writing at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver and the Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Abstract: This presentation will focus on the agreements we the people make and the ones we break. For centuries, there was obvious and undeniable malice in the overwhelming majority of settler-Indigenous interactions, a painful record that only began to abate in a more liberal post-war wave in the middle of the 20th century. Yet Indigenous-Settler issues are far from resolved. Governments in both the U.S. and Canada have passed from the dark period of malice into enlightenment, into celebrations of good intentions, but they are weighed down by a record of enduring and widely tolerated mismanagement. And for Indigenous people still struggling against the history, habits, practices, rules, and regulations of oppression and dispossession, the difference between malice and mismanagement may seem largely semantic. The deck remains stacked against them, and will do so until people and governments across the continent recognize the extent of current failure and embrace. In a confederal state like Canada, despite good intentions, National Reconciliation remains a complicated business of competing jurisdictions and cultural complexities. What seems somewhat more promising are regional or “nation to neighbour” agreements between First Nations and provincial or territorial administrations, such as the Yukon Territory's Umbrella Final Agreement, subsequent land claims treaties, and aboriginal self-government accords. If governments continue to make promises they do not plan to keep, this will further undermine public confidence in our fragile democracies.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

André Lecours
*Professor of Political Science
University of Ottawa*

“Alberta, Québec, and Canadian Federalism in the Trump Era”

Saturday, November 15 – 12 noon to 1:30 pm – (Ballroom)

André Lecours is Full Professor in the School of Political Studies at the University of Ottawa where he holds the Forum of Federations and University of Ottawa Research Chair on Comparative Federalism. He is also a former President of the Canadian Political Science Association and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada. His main research interests are nationalism and federalism. His most recent books are Nationalism, Secessionism, and Autonomy (Oxford University Press, 2021) and the co-edited collection Fiscal Federalism in Canada. Analysis, Evaluation, Prescription (University of Toronto Press, 2023).

Abstract: Territory has always been central to Canadian federalism and politics. Nationalism in Québec and Western alienation represent two political forces that have shaped the federation since its inception. The territorial proximity to the United States has also factored heavily into Canada’s political development, from the creation of the federation itself to free trade as well as security and border issues, among other things. As the political development of Québec nationalism and an Alberta-centered new phase of Western alienation was unfolding in the early 2020s came the external shock of the second Trump presidency. This keynote speech will discuss the contemporary manifestations and impact on Canadian federalism and politics of the Alberta push for increased autonomy, or even independence, as well as the current dynamics of nationalism in Québec, with the possible return of the Parti québécois (PQ) to power, all in the context of the multiple pressures brought onto the Canadian federation by the current Trump administration.

AWARDS

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Miléna Santoro (Chair), Georgetown University

Neil Forkey, St. Lawrence University

David Plazek, Vermont State University

Antoinette Williams-Tutt, Southern Methodist University

2025 DONNER MEDAL RECIPIENT

Nadine Fabbi, University of Washington

This year’s recipient of the Donner Medal, Dr. Nadine Fabbi, has built a decades-long career in service to the Canadian Studies community, as a visionary administrator, teacher, and intellectual leader in the Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington, one of the two largest and most active Canadian Studies Centers in the U.S. She is universally esteemed for her devotion to student learning, creating cross-border exchange programs and student internship opportunities, developing courses on the Arctic, and supporting training in Indigenous languages. She has nurtured colleagues across the Pacific Northwest Canadian Studies Consortium, actively collaborated with the Consulate General of Canada, hosted numerous Fulbright scholars, and worked tirelessly to promote better cross-border understanding and relationships. Both before and after obtaining her Ph.D. in 2015, Dr. Fabbi has also amassed an impressive record of public speaking and publications, and has garnered respect for her dedication to and advocacy on behalf of Indigenous nations and knowledge, a commitment that culminated in the development of the first Arctic Studies minor in the U.S. south of Alaska. Dr. Fabbi’s engagement, boundless energy, generosity of knowledge and expertise, and exemplary interpersonal skills have made her the beating heart of University of Washington’s Canadian Studies Center, and an inspiration to Canadianists in the U.S. and internationally. She richly deserves the recognition of the Donner Medal, for distinguished achievement, scholarship, and program innovation in Canadian Studies.

2025 GEORGE SULZNER AWARD

Amy Sotherden, SUNY Plattsburgh

Amy Sotherden is this year's recipient of the George T. Sulzner Award for Outstanding Service, created to recognize those who have made a lasting contribution to the success of ACSUS's mission and to Canadian Studies more broadly. Her promotion of the study of Canada throughout the K-12 and higher education communities, her support of the development of future generations of Canadian specialists through the CONNECT initiative, her ten years of service as Secretary of ACSUS and her organizational support for multiple ACSUS biennials, and her collaboration with many institutional and academic partners such as the United States Department of Education, Fulbright Canada, the Canadian-American Center at the University of Maine, the National Council for Social Studies, and the American Council for Québec Studies, have all served to showcase her considerable talents and, more importantly, her selfless devotion to serving the Canadian Studies community well beyond the walls of the Center for the Study of Canada & Institute on Québec Studies at the State University of New York, Plattsburgh.

2025 ENDERS/ACSUS 50 RESEARCH AWARD

Dr. Emma Elliott (Cowichan), University of Washington

Project Title: "Indigenous Sovereignty and Cross-Border Jurisdiction: First Nations Children in the U.S."

Abstract: This study examines how legal frameworks in Canada and the United States fit poorly the transnational nature of many First Nations communities. It focuses on the dilemma of the many First Nations children from Canada who are in the U.S. social welfare system and whose legal status remains ambiguous. It proposes a new jurisdictional framework that can address their situation and revisit the broader definition of Indigenous sovereignty in North America.

2025 RUFUS Z. SMITH PRIZE

Peter Thompson, University of New Brunswick

Article Title: "Practicing Self-Care on a Highway in the Middle of Nowhere": Ashley McKenzie's Cape Breton,"
Published in American Review of Canadian Studies Vol. 55, No. 1 (2025)

Abstract: The article examines the way in which filmmaker Ashley McKenzie depicts changes in Cape Breton's landscape and its economic and social fabric. McKenzie's films, Werewolf (2016) and Queens of the Qing Dynasty (2022), give us a vocabulary for understanding the island in the cost-of-living era: they move our gaze to Cape Breton's experience of opioid addiction; a collapsing mental health system; an influx of international students who McKenzie depicts as a new class of labor to be exploited; a particularly grim version of the "gig economy"; a mismatch between expectations around gender and patterns of work; and non-normative sexuality in a marginal place. The article explores how McKenzie's films document the impacts of economic change in industrial Cape Breton and looks specifically at her portrayal of "noxious deindustrialization."

2024 ACSUS-ENDERS GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP

Clea Harrelson, University of Maine

Project Title: "Bridging the Lobster Industries of Maine and Eastern Canada"

The Thomas O. Enders Endowment is designed to encourage advanced scholarship on Canada-U.S. relations by funding fellowships for U.S. scholars conducting research in Canada.

AWARDS

2025 ACSUS-ENDERS GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP

Janessa Marguerite Chinana, University of Washington

Project Title: “XáadlaaGa Gwaayaay: Indigenous Border Nationhood and Governance Across Settler-State Borders”

The Thomas O. Enders Endowment is designed to encourage advanced scholarship on Canada-U.S. relations by funding fellowships for U.S. scholars conducting research in Canada.

2025 JEANNE KISSNER AWARD

Gibson Steinert, Western Washington University

Paper Title: “The British Fur Trade in the Pacific Northwest: A Means to Lay Claim to the Land”

The Jeanne Kissner Undergraduate Essay in Humanities Award was created in honor of the late Jeanne Kissner, Co-Director of the Center for the Study of Canada at Plattsburgh State University. Professor Kissner was unflagging in her support of Canadian studies education at the undergraduate level and had always hoped that such an award would be established. The award recognizes a high-quality undergraduate essay that presents a scholarly exploration of any Canadian studies theme.

2025 MARTIN LUBIN AWARD

Dante Gerrior, Bridgewater State University

Paper Title: “A Hidden Genocide: Examining Indian Residential Schools in Canada”

The Martin Lubin Undergraduate Award in the Social Sciences was created in honor of the late Martin Lubin, Professor at SUNY Plattsburgh, who passed away in September 2011. Originally from Montréal, he had played a key role in the Canadian Studies program at SUNY Plattsburgh for many years. His main research focus was on Québec politics and society.

2025 ICCS CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

Dr. Christopher Sands, Director of Hopkins Center for Canadian Studies, Johns Hopkins University

By virtue of his sustained, diverse, and significant contributions to the advancement of the understanding of Canada and the furtherance of Canadian Studies, Dr. Christopher Sands has received the ICCS Certificate of Merit. Dr. Sands’ scholarly and applied research has significantly shaped our understanding of Canada’s relationship with the United States and Canada’s role in the broader international system. No matter how complex the subject matter, his research is accessible and impactful to both scholars and policymakers alike. He is a prolific writer and his work has been published widely in academic, think tank, and media outlets. For his sustained commitment to advancing the field of Canadian Studies, his pioneering research on Canada-U.S. relations, and his dedication to fostering meaningful public and scholarly engagement, Christopher Sands is the 2025 recipient of this prestigious award.

2025 GOVERNOR GENERAL’S INTERNATIONAL AWARD FOR CANADIAN STUDIES

Dr. Stephen Hornsby, Professor of Geography and Canadian Studies, University of Maine

Dr. Stephen Hornsby was the Director of the Canadian-American Center at the University of Maine from 1987-2021. Hornsby enhanced the Center’s reputation for scholarly research, strengthened its teaching mission, and supported its outreach in Canadian Studies. His many and varied accomplishments as director ranged from organizing an historical geography conference at Battle Harbour, Labrador (2005), to commissioning Margaret Wickens Pearce to produce the Coming Home to Indigenous Place Names in Canada map (2017) to mark the 150 anniversary of Canadian Confederation. A completely new representation of Canada, this prize-winning map shows only First Nations, Métis, and Inuit placenames along with their English translations. He has served on the Executive Board of the Association for Canadian Studies in the United States (ACSUS), and on the Fulbright Committee on Graduate Awards for Canada. For his outstanding contributions to Canadian Studies, ACSUS awarded him the Donner Medal in 2023.

“Malice or Mismanagement: North America’s History of Broken Treaty Promises”

This presentation will focus on the agreements we the people make and the ones we break. From the beginning, the colonization of North America was a disaster for Indigenous peoples. Settlers and settler governments stripped First People of their lands, killed them, infected them, destroyed or declared illegal their governing system, and stole their children. If governments continue to make promises they do not plan to keep, this will further undermine public confidence in our fragile democracies.

“Where is the Canada-United States Relationship Headed?: Political Realities in 2025.”

The 2025 Enders Symposium examines a range of pressing demands currently reshaping the direction of relations between Ottawa and Washington. With the Trump administration publicly committed to advancing and securing a “new” relationship with Canada, what are the implications for Canada? What policy choices are available to Canada? How does Canada, in fact, manage the relationship at a time of uncertainty? And what precisely is the United States seeking in a redefined U.S.-Canada relationship?

LUNCHEON and KEYNOTE ADDRESS – (Ballroom)

“Alberta, Québec, and Canadian Federalism in the Trump Era”

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: André Lecours

Professor of Political Science, University of Ottawa

Territory has always been central to Canadian federalism and politics. Nationalism in Québec and Western alienation represent two political forces that have shaped the federation since its inception. The territorial proximity to the United States has also factored heavily into Canada’s political development, from the creation of the federation itself to free trade as well as security and border issues, among other things. As the political development of Québec nationalism and an Alberta-centered new phase of Western alienation was unfolding in the early 2020s came the external shock of the second Trump presidency. This keynote speech will discuss the contemporary manifestations and impact on Canadian federalism and politics of the Alberta push for increased autonomy, or even independence, as well as the current dynamics of nationalism in Québec, with the possible return of the Parti québécois (PQ) to power, all in the context of the multiple pressures brought onto the Canadian federation by the current Trump administration.

Visual International Relations Project Workshop – (Cobalt)
Reserved for invited participants only.

COORDINATOR – Patrick James, University of Southern California

The Visual International Relations Project (VIRP) archive contains over 1000 diagrams that have been created using the systemist method, with each diagram representing the contents of an academic publication. A considerable number of items in the VIRP archive pertain to Canadian Studies and the systemist technique can be applied in any discipline across the humanities and social sciences. The workshop will introduce the systemist method, which can become a career-long tool for students and faculty alike.

Participants in the workshop will receive a certificate of completion and be able to use the graphic method of systemism in their research and teaching. A final draft of the diagram will go in the VIRP archive – with the workshop participants listed as co-authors – and include a comment that the entry had been developed during the workshop.

New Book Titles on QUÉBEC-U.S. RELATIONS

This new volume, The Québec-United States Relationship: Political, Security, Economic, Environmental and Cultural Dynamics (Palgrave Macmillan, 2025), explores the many ways in which Québec engages with the United States, including political exchange, border issues, trade, business and investment, transportation, immigration, cultural links and identity, the role of energy transmission and natural resources, and environmental considerations. The book both explores and explains what, when, why and how Québec has chosen to engage the U.S. while examining the fundamental issues that lie at the heart of the relationship. Editors – Frédéric Gagnon, Christopher Kirkey and Stéphane Paquin.

Ce nouvel ouvrage, intitulé La relation Québec-États Unis: Dynamiques politiques, sécuritaires, économiques, environnementales et culturelles (Presses de l'Université Laval, à paraître début 2026), explore les nombreuses façons dont le Québec interagit avec les États-Unis, notamment les échanges politiques, les questions frontalières, le commerce, les affaires et les investissements, les transports, l'immigration, les liens culturels et l'identité, le rôle du transport d'énergie et des ressources naturelles, ainsi que les considérations environnementales. Le livre explore et explique ce que le Québec a choisi de faire avec les États-Unis, quand, pourquoi et comment, tout en examinant les questions fondamentales qui sont au cœur de cette relation. Sous la direction de Frédéric Gagnon, Christopher Kirkey and Stéphane Paquin.

We bring Canada to Southern New England

Since 1973, Bridgewater State University's Canadian Studies Program has been dedicated to teaching and research about Canada, and Canada-U.S. relations. Stressing academic excellence, we host a variety of undergraduate courses, an interdisciplinary Minor, student exchange programs with Canadian university partners, the endowed Killam Visiting Professorship in Canadian Studies, provocative guest lectures, scholarly symposia, and an international undergraduate research conference. Our faculty are among the most active researchers in the field.

CANADA CONNECT

 CANADIAN STUDIES CENTER

An Initiative of the Michigan State University Canadian Studies Center

Canada Connect is a platform for generating and maintaining strategic partnerships between MSU and stakeholders key to the U.S.-Canada relationship, including legislators, business leaders, and Canadian peer institutions.

Leveraging the wide-ranging expertise of MSU faculty, the Canada Connect Policy Initiative keeps Michigan legislators and key stakeholders informed on Canada-related issues critical to Michigan's economy, industries, and communities.

L'Association internationale des études québécoises aide les universitaires qui se consacrent à l'étude du Québec à participer et à organiser des événements scientifiques en leur offrant du soutien financier et logistique, ainsi qu'un accès privilégié à une communauté internationale pluridisciplinaire. Elle contribue ainsi à mieux faire connaître et comprendre le Québec à l'échelle internationale.

The International Association of Québec Studies (AIEQ) helps academics dedicated to the study of Québec by providing financial and logistical support for organizing and participating in scientific events. It also offers privileged access to a multidisciplinary international community, contributing to a greater understanding and recognition of Québec worldwide.

EXPANDING KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING OF THE SHARED CANADIAN-AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

CENTER FOR CANADIAN-AMERICAN STUDIES

The Center offers a multi/interdisciplinary academic program and transformative outreach opportunities to students, the community, and K-16 educators, focusing on the Canada-U.S. relationship through the engagement with place and the pursuit of social justice and equity.

OUR CENTER IS UNIQUE!

- The Center is the only west coast institution to offer a Bachelor's degree with a focus on Canada.
- The Center is represented campus-wide with faculty engaged in transboundary, multidisciplinary scholarship from 6 different campus colleges.
- The Canadian-American Studies major and minor specializes in the areas of Indigenous social/environmental justice, transboundary media, French-Canadian studies, and immigration and border policies.
- Internship and study abroad opportunities are available to students.
- The Center holds senior leadership in international Canadian Studies professional organizations.

Established in 1971, the Center for Canadian-American Studies at WWU is a National Research Center that provides educational services and resources on the transboundary relationship between Canada and the United States.

PRIORITY 1:

Facilitate place-based, transboundary relationships between Canada and the U.S.

PRIORITY 2:

Increase initiatives that support underrepresented minorities and Indigenous nations.

PRIORITY 3:

Expand knowledge of Canada in K-16 education and curriculum through national outreach.

OUR AUDIENCE:

WWU faculty, staff, students, & alumni

Minority-serving institutions & community colleges

Post-secondary institutions with a focus on Canada

K-16 students and educators

Canadian and American government agencies & stakeholders
